BUY YOUR PIANO WITH RENT $5.00 A MONTH.

The Frederick Piano Co. Springs A Surprise.

Almost Anybody Can Buy a Fine Piano Under This Plan.

There's nothing new about selling Pianos at $5 a month. Lots of Pianos are sold at those figures every day, but the least said about the QUALITY of $5 a month pianos the better.

This is another proposition. It is positively unheard of to SELL the grade of Piano which RENTS for $5 a month on the same terms. This is exactly what we are doing right now.

When we bought out the Knabe place last fall we took over their immense rental business, and, as the renting season is now ending, we are getting back these Pianos—more than 200 of them—faster than we can care for them. In fact, unless we put them out immediately, we will have to rent another building to put them in. We propose to let you have your choice of them to buy it on the same monthly payments as we have been getting as rent. And more than that—we will reduce the value of the piano itself, because it has been rented.

It's hardly necessary to say anything about the quality of the Pianos handled by the Knabe house. Everybody knows their high artistic standing.

These splendid Piano-fortes are coming in daily and buyers are coming in after them. We want a good home for each of them as soon as received. Remember, that while there are more than 200 of these Pianos to be disposed of during June (grands, uprights and a few player-pianos), we cannot allow them to accumulate in our warehouses; we haven't room for them; so come as early as possible and make your selection; be prepared to take it at once; they MUST be removed from here and immediately.

Every Piano is guaranteed, delivered free in town, tuned free for one year, stool and cover included free and the whole cost to you is just what we have been receiving as RENTAL for it this season.

Women's Readers

IN GOLD AND BROWN.

The sketch above shows one of the new bonnets, though our grandmothers would scarcely recognize them by that name. The shape of butter-colored straw is left open at the back, where the space is filled by a huge bow of brown taffeta ribbon, which has been twisted through the flowers on the crown. The latter is square and high, and trimmed with huge flowers on the style of a daisy, having brown velvet centers and yellow petals. These almost completely cover the crown and add a charming note to the color scheme.

COLORED HANDKERCHIEFS USED WITH ALL COSTUMES

Styles in handkerchiefs have changed this season, as have the more important details of women's wardrobes, and the new designs and colorings in these small accessories are fascinating.

To begin with, almost without exception all the new handkerchiefs display a touch of color. The exceptions are the lace-trimmed kerchiefs that are costly. The cheaper lace handkerchiefs are given a touch of color even though it may be only a cluster of tiny dots worked in each corner or single letter that appears in one corner.

Another new feature is the narrow hem. No up-to-date handkerchief shows a hem wider than one-quarter inch, and some are even narrower.

The smartest design for morning wear or with any tailored suit is white, with a narrow hemstitched edge enclosing a band of solid color in a deep shade. For instance, dark brown, dark old rose, deep watermelon pink, dark wistaria, apple green, etc. And as the bands are from one to two inches wide such handkerchiefs will be a conspicuous detail of the toilet.

For that reason alone it will be wise to choose these accessories either to match or harmonize with the gown with which they will be worn.

No less assertive in regard to coloring are the handkerchiefs for afternoon, although the tones are lighter than those used for the bands, three and sometimes four colorings are printed on the one small white handkerchief. In some designs the corners will be blocks of solid color, in such tones as yellow, old rose, pale pink and pretty shades of blue. These form a background for contrasting colors in such designs as polka dots, broken bars and flowers conventionalized. Others are hemmed with a color and display a border inside in the design mentioned. The variety of colors and designs seem to be endless, so there will be no little of the juice. Coconut custard is made by sprinkling freshly grated coconut into buttered and lightly sugared cups before turning in the plain custard. Flavor with orange rind or vanilla.

When baked turn out and serve with sweetened whipped cream.

Coffee Custard. Put one-half cup ground coffee in a little muslin bag and drop into four cups of cold milk. Let stand twenty minutes, then put into the double boiler until it reaches the scolding stage and, in five minutes, then remove the bag and pour the hot milk over four beaten eggs and four heaping tablespoonsful sugar. Pour into a custard bowl and set in the pan of hot water in the oven or, if preferred, turn back into the double boiler. Cook until thickened, strain, set aside to cool.

Caramel Custard. Put one-half cupful sugar in a smooth frying pan and stir until it melts and takes on a rich brown color. Add a plain custard, made as usual, but lessening the amount of sugar and flavoring with vanilla.

French Caramel Custard. A little different is this French custard. Heat a pint of milk in a double boiler. The milk, by the way, must be quite fresh or the caramel is apt to curdle it. Into a new granite pudding dish put four tablespoonsful of granulated sugar and melt it on top of the stove, watching and stirring it carefully until it is a clear bright brown liquid, thoroughly caramelized.

Pour onto it gradually the scolding milk, which will dissolve most of the caramel sugar. Pour this liquid gradually into the beaten yolks of three large eggs (or the whole of two). Return to the pudding dish and bake an hour in a slow oven. The custard will be under it and one protecting it on the side above it. Should-like all baked custards—have a thin layer of custard on the top, and done, and can be safely taken out of the oven when a thin crust plumped into it does not come creamy or sticky. Caramel which has hardened on the pan or even on the spoon will dissolve in the long cooking.

EMMA PADDOCK TELFORD.

Rhubarb Recipes.

Rhubarb Marmalade. Allow one pound of sugar and one inch of rind to each pound of rhubarb. Prepare the rhubarb in the usual way, cover with cold water and let stand twenty-four hours. Drain, sprinkle with half the sugar in layers and let rest for twenty-four hours. Cut the lemon rind in fine pieces or put through a mincer, add to it its weight in sugar, put with cook for half an hour.

Add the remainder of the sugar and boil for half an hour or longer until of the proper consistency. Great care must be taken to prevent its sticking in the pan.

Rhubarb and Fig Jam. Add five pounds rhubarb, cut in inch pieces, one pound figs and the grated rind and juice of one lemon. Add four pounds sugar and do not disturb all night. Next day boil for one hour.

Distinctive Outergarments for Ladies and Misses.

Our "Special" Linen Suit at $15.

So good that it has become a standard to measure excellence by. So good, indeed, that other merchants are constrained to tell customers that they "have ordered some and will soon be able to show it" or "will soon have something just like it" that they will be able to sell at the same price.

As a matter of fact this suit is an exclusive model and no one else can show you anything like it.

It is built on much finer lines than ready-to-wear garments usually are, and the tailoring is of a higher order. It has that indefinable air about it that usually means a stiff price.

Made of pure Irish linen crash of heavy quality, in all the popular shades and all sizes.
